Culture Education 2.

Course Aim To provide a good overview of the age named after the Queen including a little about her character and that of her husband, and the major events of probably the most significant era so far in British history.
Course Description Who would have thought that a lady of small stature who inherited the British Crown because she was the only available alternative and took her German cousin as a husband would have an era named after her? And what an era it was; an era of contradictions. On the one hand it saw great wealth, industrial and scientific development, empire, universal education and philanthropy, and on the other hand the extreme poverty of the workhouse, factory and cramped urban slums as outlined by such authors as Dickens. Come along to a relaxed and enjoyable class to view the era from the eyes of those who lived in it and influenced its development, with plenty of opportunity to look at how it worked out in you area.
Do I need any particular skills or experience?
What will I achieve? By the end of the course I will be able to: 1. Form an opinion about the developments of the era in many fields of life and the extent to which the Queen and her husband epitomised and influenced them.

2. Describe the major developments of the era in science and industry, the church, education, housing and public health and how people spent their leisure time.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of the era not just as a series of chronological events but from the eyes of the people who lived through it by examining diaries, letters and other sources.
4. Investigate how national issues and developments worked themselves out in your part of the country with opportunities and ideas given for your own research.
