Course Aim To provide an introduction to the art produced by female artists and commissioned/acquired by women focussing on content, style and the factors which hindered or facilitated their creation through the centuries.
Course Description There have been accomplished female artists from the Middle Ages – and even earlier – but their achievements have often been neglected. We shall explore their contribution to art through careful study of the works of artists such as Artemisia Gentileschi, Rosalba Carriera, Berte Morisot and Bridget Riley. We will survey important female patrons of the arts such as Isabella d’Este and Madame de Pompadour as part of the course.
Do I need any particular skills or experience?
What will I achieve? By the end of the course I will be able to: 1. examine some of the works discussed during the course in a critical manner. 2. list two factors which hindered female artists in achieving their potential in either the 16th or the 19th century.

3. list two features of female self-portraiture in the 18th or 19th century.
4. discuss the artistic taste of a female patron of my choice.
