Course Description

Every day many of us face the all too common problem of feeling lethargic, unfocused, and lacking personal drive. No matter your career, aspirations, or current situation you may feel frustrated at wanting to become more motivated and inspired in your activities and creations. We will touch upon the psychological and physical processes at work, aim to identify what could be causing difficulties for ourselves, and make a plan on how to address these issues. This informal activity will feature casual lecture, group discussion, and some activities that can start you off on the right track!
